Classes Added at El Camino College Compton Center for Fall 2013 Semester; Students Encouraged to Register Now to Get the Classes They Need

El Camino College Compton Center has added a significant number of classes to the fall schedule, and the timing couldn't be better for student Carlos Ornelas.

“As I prepare to transfer to a university next year, there are only a few course requirements I still need to fulfill and I was able to register for the exact classes on my educational plan for the fall semester,” said Ornelas, ECC Compton Center Associated Student Body president.

With the state budget picture improving slightly, ECC Compton Center is allocating more monies to support the additional classes, which began impacting students during the summer sessions.

Ornelas, an English major who plans to transfer to either California State University, Dominguez Hills, Fullerton or Long Beach, added he is aware many prospective ECC Compton Center students have had difficulty the past few years getting started with their college education because the classes they needed were not available.

“These added classes will allow more students the opportunity to get the classes they need to earn a degree or transfer to a university, which will help them in their future endeavors,” he said.

The list of additional classes cover a variety of subjects, including high-demand core classes in English, math and sciences. This past year, community colleges statewide struggled with budget reductions that led to fewer class offerings.

“We are pleased to be able to address the students' needs by offering more classes,” said El Camino College Compton Center Vice President Barbara Perez. “The significant number of classes added for fall will make a big difference to students in our communities who are working to transfer to a university or trying to complete the training they need for a career.”
